

ABSTRACT

A product package intended to hold a product for sale. The product package includes one or more light sources disposed therein and configured to direct light through one or more openings in the exterior of the product package, in order to entice customers to purchase the product. Various techniques are used such as diffusing light before letting it exit the product package.